=== BONUS ACTIONS ===
Bardic Inspiration • 4 / Short Rest
As a bonus action, a creature (other than yourself) within 60 ft. that can hear you gains an inspiration die (1d8). For 10 minutes, the creature can add it to one ability check, attack roll, or saving throw. This can be added after seeing the roll, but before knowing the outcome.

=== REACTIONS ===
Cutting Words
As a reaction when a creature (that's not immune to being charmed) you can see within 60 ft. makes an attack roll, ability check, or damage roll, you can expend one use of Bardic Inspiration, roll the die, and subtract the number from the creature's roll. You can do so after the roll but before knowing the result.

CHARACTER APPEARANCE

ALLIES & ORGANIZATIONS

I know a story relevant to almost every situation.
I love a good insult, even one directed at me.

PERSONALITY TRAITS

People. I like seeing the smiles on people's faces when I perform. That's all that matters. (Neutral)

IDEALS

I idolize a hero of the old tales and measure my deeds against that person's.

BONDS

I have trouble keeping my true feelings hidden. My sharp tongue lands me in trouble.

FLAWS

Malakos Duskwalker was born in the bustling city of Baldur's Gate, where the mingling of diverse cultures and the constant hum of activity provided the perfect backdrop for his early life. His parents, both tieflings of the Mammon lineage, were well-respected traders who had amassed considerable wealth through shrewd business dealings. From a young age, Malakos was taught the value of coin and the power it held, but it was the stories his father told him at night—tales of legendary bards, magical artifacts, and daring adventures—that truly captured his imagination.

As Malakos grew older, his fascination with these stories only deepened. He spent countless hours in the city's libraries, poring over ancient texts and learning about the world's wonders. His natural charisma and quick wit made him a popular figure among his peers, and he soon discovered his talent for performance. He began to entertain small gatherings with tales of his own, accompanied by the melodies of his lute. It wasn't long before he realized that his true calling was not in trading like his parents, but in the art of storytelling and music.

Determined to pursue his passion, Malakos left home at the age of eighteen and joined a traveling troupe of performers. He honed his skills as a bard, learning to weave magic into his performances to captivate his audiences even more. His performances brought smiles and laughter to people's faces, and he found great joy in bringing a bit of light into their lives. However, life on the road was not without its challenges. As a tiefling, Malakos often faced prejudice and mistrust from those who were ignorant or fearful of his infernal heritage. He learned to navigate these difficulties with grace, using his charm and wit to win over even the most skeptical of spectators.

Malakos's travels took him to many corners of the realm, and he encountered all manner of creatures and characters. He made a point of learning something from everyone he met, whether it was a new song, a clever trick, or a piece of wisdom. It was during these travels that he came across the tale of a legendary bard known as Liriel the Enchantress, whose music was said to have the power to soothe even the most troubled souls. Liriel became Malakos's idol, and he aspired to emulate her ability to touch people's hearts with his art.

Despite his successes, Malakos's journey was not without its trials. His tiefling nature sometimes caused him to be the target of unfounded suspicions and hostility. In one particularly harrowing incident, a group of zealots accused him of using dark magic to bewitch his audience and incite them to riot. Malakos was forced to flee for his life, narrowly escaping with the help of a few loyal friends. This experience left a deep mark on him, reinforcing his resolve to prove that his talents were a force for good.

As he continued to travel, Malakos's reputation as a bard of unparalleled skill grew. He was eventually invited to perform at the court of a powerful noble, where he was granted an audience with the ruler himself. The performance that followed was the highlight of Malakos's career. His music and stories filled the court with wonder and delight, earning him the patronage of the noble and a place of honor in his household.

Now, with the resources and security provided by his patron, Malakos is free to pursue his art with even greater ambition. He dreams of composing a masterpiece that will be remembered for generations, a work that will transcend the boundaries of race and heritage and speak to the universal human experience. But even as he enjoys the comforts of his new life, Malakos knows that true inspiration is found in the world beyond the court's gilded walls. He continues to travel whenever he can, seeking out new stories and experiences to fuel his creativity.

Malakos Duskwalker's journey is a testament to the power of art to overcome adversity and bring people together. In a world where tieflings are often judged by their appearance, Malakos has shown that it is the beauty of one's soul and the talent one possesses that truly define a person. His music and stories are a beacon of hope and joy, proving that even in the darkest of times, there is light to be found in the shared human experience of art and storytelling.
